

My lockdown diary

When we went into lockdown back in March, I:

FELT Worried. It was a worrying time. I was worried about keeping everybody safe.

DID I was still working. My hours in the Tesco freezer department were just the same but the vegetable aisles and the pizza aisles were empty.

SAW Shops were boarded up in Bathgate.

HEARD Numbers of covid cases going up every day on the news.

MISSED I missed seeing my girlfriend because she was in Manchester with her gran and I was here. I didn't see her for five months.

DIDN'T MISS Nothing much changed for me to do with work. We had to keep two metres distant and now we have to wear a mask in the canteen or walking about the corridors. The corner shop was busy at the beginning with people buying pasta and toilet rolls and flour. We didn't see as many older people but they had their families coming in to shop for them.

WATCHED TV news and a few films.
